

I strongly oppose the weakening of the Indiana no-call list. If I wish to do business with a bank, I want to be the person initiating the contact. I do NOT want banks contacting me without my explicit permission. Since the Indiana n-call list has been in place, our house has become much more peaceful as there have been NO telemarketers calling. Allowing banks to negate the effect of our current law would make me, once again, subject to the annoying, interrupting, and useless marketing phone call.
